Seminar Description

In face of the global challenges of climate change, it is imperative to take active and decisive actions to address them. With HKSAR Government's carbon neutrality target by 2050 and upcoming requirements on climate disclosure, the urgent need for robust decarbonisation measures has been widely acknowledged. Meanwhile, as "Environmental, Social and Governance" (ESG) is getting rising attention in recent years, more companies are increasing their emphasis on social impact and searching for good practices to improve their ESG performance. For driving such sustainable changes, innovation and technologies could provide solutions which will also enable companies to enhance their competitive edge.

With the vision of enabling the adoption of innovation and technologies to deliver social, economic and environmental impact, HKPC takes the lead to organise the Carbon Neutrality Seminar Series to assist Hong Kong industries and enterprises to enhance their knowledge in relevant aspects. Following the first two seminars on "Green Building and Construction Technologies and Practices" and "Transforming Green Finance Education in Hong Kong" respectively, the third seminar in the series focuses on the latest trends and innovative approaches towards ESG excellence and a carbon neutrality vision.

In this third seminar, esteemed speakers who are forerunners on different ESG aspects will be invited to share their innovative approaches on tackling ESG issues, along with guests' sharing on latest market trends and technologies for achieving carbon neutrality.
